The Australian Swim Schools Association (ASSA) is delighted to announce that EvoHeat has become its latest 'Pool of Poolies' Partner. ASSA CEO, Ross Gage, said that, "with pool heating and air-handling being such an essential element of the operations of our Member Swim Schools, a partner in this field was highly desirable". Gage went on to say, "being able to secure an international leader, in EvoHeat, is a giant coup for our Members and the Association".

EvoHeat National Business Manager, Tony Mills is excited about their recent partnership. "We are passionate about supporting such an important swim association and look forward to supporting ASSA in their mission to drive and evolve the Australian Swim School Industry". Tony continued "EvoHeat look forward to providing Australian Swim Schools with market-leading pool heating and air handling technology that can reduce energy bills and running costs by up to 80%. We offer flexible payment options to cater for all business requirements".

The funding from EvoHeat will assist ASSA in its campaigns to significantly increase the number of Aussies benefiting from a fun, high quality learn-to-swim experience. These actions, and many more to come, will result in many more safer swimmers enjoying Australia's wonderful aquatic opportunities – including that great Aussie icon..... the home pool.
